City moving forward with Crystal Beach rehab

Poole Group of Dillsboro awarded contract for $2.5 million

BY BOB DEMAREE

The City of Madison is moving forward with plans to rehabilitate Crystal Beach pool despite the fact that all bids exceeded the $2 million grant that was awarded by the Indiana Office of Community and Rural Affairs (OCRA).

Bids received during an April 19 meeting all ranged from $500,000 to $1 million over the grant amount. Poole Group of Dillsboro had the lowest bid at $2,527,000, and was awarded the contract. Other bids had come from Teton Corporation of Madison at $2,656,000 and Calhoun Construction of Louisville at $2,966,000.

Madison Mayor Bob Courtney noted the bids are effective for 60 days and said he wanted to act on them "because we do not want to lose the low bid even though it is over our projected budget. Secondly, we don't want to do anything that will jeopardize the OCRA grant that requires the work be completed by the summer of 2022."

Courtney said that even though the bid is over the project's budget, the city will seek other funding to support the project. He said he spoke with Denny Spinner, executive director of the Indiana Office of Community and Rural Affairs last week, and was told OCRA agreed to see if they can identify additional grant funds to offset that cost. Also, Courtney said he had informed the Redevelopment Commission that is providing match money for Stellar Community projects, there may need to be additional funds allocated.

"We need to be strategical and tactical in terms of reserving this project," Courtney said.

Board member David Carlow agreed, "I think it's incumbent that we move on this. We don't want to jeopardize the $2 million grant. This is not a project that we want to take on or fund ourselves."

Madison Schools getting $5.5M from ARA fund

BY BOB DEMAREE

Madison Consolidated Schools will receive $5.5 million from the American Rescue Act — the third phase of COVID-19 relief funding provided by the federal government — and hopes to better define what that can be used for by next month.

No decisions have been made so far about how the district might utilize the money, but Madison Superintendent Dr. Jeffrey Studebaker provided a rough draft of possibilities at last week's Madison board meeting with plans to firm up those details by the June board meeting.

Among the possibilities is earmarking funding for learning loss interventions to respond the students' academic and emotional needs as impacted by the coronavirus.

Ventilation safety issues related to COVID-19 are also being considered with the possibility that some of the money might go toward improve heating, ventilation and air conditioning (HVAC) at Madison Junior High School and Anderson Elementary as the school corporation evaluates how to fund that work.

PACE program down to $17K after latest round

Committee adjusts metrics on Airbnbs

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Madison's Preservation And Community Enhancement (PACE) Review Committee met last week to score the latest round of applications for the city's grant program to restore and preserve the historic structures that help make up Madison's National Historic Landmark District.

The panel recommended matching funding for all 13 applications — just under $210,000 in total projects — to draw down that fund to just over $17,000 for the next round of applicants before the program is refunded in 2022.

Final approval came at Monday's Madison's Board of Public Works and Safety meeting when funding for all 13 projects was approved.

The PACE Committee members said all 13 were worthwhile projects so there was no reason to hold back more of the funding for the next round of grants because each improvement makes a difference in the community and to delay work does not make sense for the program or the property owners who are eager to beautify their buildings.

"Some of these places are now beautiful and they were nothing when they started," said Committee Chairman Bill Ohlendorf. "There is no reason to prolong spending the money."

Madison, Sunrise golf pro reach separation agreement

Bridgford's 26-year tenure to end June 30

BY MARK CAMPBELL

After meeting recently to work out terms, Madison's Parks Board approved a separation agreement between the City of Madison and Sunrise Golf Course PGA Professional Jeff Bridgford on Thursday that will ultimately place the course under new management for the first time in more than 26 years.

The move is the latest development in the city's overall strategy to reorganize and restructure the 18-hole municipal course in an effort to make Sunrise profitable after years of losing money and increasing the financial burden on the rest of the city's park's system.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Arrests made in Madison, Scottsburg incidents

A Jefferson County man was arrested Thursday on felony drug charges based on an investigation by Madison police.

Robert Daniel Gibson, 32, Paris Crossing, was arrested for Dealing Methamphetamine, a Level 4 felony and Possession of Methamphetamine, a Level 6 felony, stemming from an ongoing investigation by Madison Police Detectives Kyle Cutshaw and Ricky Harris.

Gibson allegedly unknowingly sold methamphetamine to the detectives during controlled drug purchases on several occasions.

On Thursday, Gibson was observed by Cutshaw driving a black Chevrolet S-10 pickup in downtown Madison. Cutshaw, knowing that Gibson's driver's license was suspended, alerted MPD Patrolman Trent Smith who conducted a traffic stop and found Gibson to be in possession of methamphetamine during the stop and subsequent search.

Gibson was lodged in the Jefferson County Jail without bond. Additional charges for the prior controlled drug transactions are expected to be filed in the case.

Elsewhere, deputies with the Scott County Sheriff's Office responding to an alleged domestic dispute on Birch Tree Lane in Scottsburg last week arrested a Madison man Wednesday for felony Residential Entry and other charges.

Stephen McManus, 29, of Madison, had allegedly been at the residence without the homeowner's consent but had left the scene. Deputies discovered a vehicle owned by McManus near the residence with the homeowner's dog inside and determined that McManus had allegedly taken the homeowner's dog and a firearm from the residence.

A search for McManus in the nearby area began with witnesses advising they had observed McManus run toward a wooded area near the residence. McManus was eventually located at a gas station in Scottsburg where he was arrested and lodged in the Scott County Jail at 11:34 p.m.

McManus is charged with Residential Entry, a Level 6 felony; Resisting Law Enforcement, a Calss A misdemeanor; and Criminal Trespass, a Class B misdemeanor. Further investigation revealed McManus was on parole with the Indiana Department of Correction and he was also placed on a Parole Hold.

PACE

Ohlendorf noted that the sooner property owners or investors can begin work, the faster the city can be beautified and its history preserved. Plus, the changes seen through the PACE program attract even more private investment while increasing property values and adding to the city's tax base.

One of the 13 applications was initially scored too low to receive funding based on its intended future use as an Airbnb rather than as rental property or an owner-occupied home. The committee, noting that many Madison restoration projects start out as Airbnbs but eventually become rentals or are sold into owner occupation, agreed that the grant program's metrics need to be change to not penalize Airbnbs, which not only add to the property tax base but support the local tourism industry.

"The whole goal is to improve Madison and make it look good," Oldendorf said.

The Committee voted unanimously to adjust the grant metrics to where Airbnb and rental properties are both scored on the same scale.

One of the big projects before the review committee Tuesday was an application by Justin McGillian of McGillian Holding LLC to restore and revitalize the former Victoria Inn, 801 East Main Street in downtown Madison, as an apartment complex. The application easily scored high enough to receive a recommendation.

GOLF

Although Bridgford was not personally responsible for those financial losses — the course received almost 26,000 rounds of play last year and Mayor Bob Courtney has said the shortfall was due mostly to high maintenance costs and a fee structure too low for the product — the terms of the pro's contract limited the city's options for generating new revenue.

Bridgford's management contact allowed him profits from operating the equipment shop and grill and a portion of cart rentals and greens fees, leaving the city's options for balancing the course's budget to raising usage fees and/or cutting expenses.

According to Madison Parks Director Matt Woolard, the city will look to retain more of those proceeds in all areas moving forward in addition to immediately adding alcohol sales at the grill and on the course through a three-way liquor license the city was granted a few weeks ago.

Bridgford agreed to terms of the "mutual" separation, but said he had "not yet wrapped my head around" a career change after a quarter century as head pro at the course. However, he added that "change is inevitable" just as it was when he took over for longtime pro Bob Rusk 26 1/2 years ago.

"It's a very reasonable agreement on both sides of the fence — very amicable even though it was rapidly transpiring," Bridgford said. "I'm going to do everything I can to make for a smooth transition for the next person just like Bob did for me. He made sure that happened then and I'll make sure it happens now for the sake of the golf course, the players, the parks department and the events we have scheduled.

"This course has had two pros in the last 59 years and that says a lot about the people of Madison," Bridgford added. "My wife and I love Madison so our plan is to stay in town. We'll still be out there playing the course — and working with the Friends of Sunrise on projects — but I'll stay out of the new person's way so they can do their thing."

Bridgford will manage the course through June 30 at which time he will transfer ownership of the pro shop inventory to the city for a sum of $85,218 and the grill and all equipment for a sum of $20,000. He will also receive $85,000 in prospective compensation over the next two years, $16,000 for prospective employment health insurance and retirement benefits and Bridgford and his wife will have free lifetime greens fees and cart pass privileges as long as the course is owned by the city.

A more immediately change will be the availability of alcohol sales on the course — to begin as soon as May 7 under terms of the separation agreement — and Bridgford admitted that was an area he did not look forward to dealing with.

"The mayor wants to sell alcohol, I was OK with that as long as I didn't have anything to do with it," Bridgford said, noting that alcohol sales may bring a whole different dynamic to the course and the grill, especially where middle school and high school players play a lot of their practice rounds and matches.

He admitted that being in a position to have to monitor alcohol consumption and/or be responsible for patrons who consume alcohol during their golf round or at the grill and then drive home is an issue he's glad to avoid.

Woolard said the focus now is to find a PGA Professional who can manage the course and all of its operations from marketing to finance and event planning to player development. He did not have a time table for that search but said the course will remain fully operational throughout the process.

Having a golf professional at the course with expanded responsibilities is a continuation of the mayor's improvement plan for Sunrise and part of that inevitable change.

"Sunrise Golf Course has been providing great recreation to the community for nearly 50 years. As we continue to make progress overcoming the fiscal challenges at Sunrise, it is our vision to reposition this regional gem to reach its full potential," said Courtney.

A release issued by the city said the individual who will be hired to serve as PGA professional will be responsible for marketing, management, financial performance and player cultivation. Courtney said he will form a selection committee to search for and recommend that candidate and that changes to the day-to-day operations and fiscal management of the golf course, is just part of his plans to make improvements to the city's entire park system.

"Our investment in improving course conditions, adding GPS systems to carts, and expanding services in the clubhouse are just a few examples that are already in progress. With the savings and revenue generated by the Sunrise course, we will be able to upgrade our entire park system for the enjoyment of Madison residents for many years to come," said Mayor Courtney.

CITY

In other business:

• Police Chief John Wallace asked for a change in Madison Police Department rules and regulations to allow officers to work 12-hour patrol shifts while non-patrol staff would still be on eight hour shifts. Previously all officers were on eight-hour work shifts.

The change allows MPD to implement 12-hour work shifts for officers following the Madison Regatta. "We will try for a six month trial to see how it works out," said Wallace, who noted he structured his officers that way during two terms in office as Jefferson County Sheriff and it has continued to work well for county law enforcement.

"MPD has never tried this. I think it's time that we did," he said.

Wallace said the new structure benefits both the police officers and the city. "Now every officer gets every fifth week off. With this schedule, every other weekend will be a three-day weekend." Wallace said. The new structure also benefits the police department because with working long shifts, the carry-over time provides "extra officers on duty to cover that busy time."

"I think it's a good plan and worth experimenting," Courtney said. "Certainly there is going to be a benefit for the officers but the real benefit is going to be to have the manpower during the time when you need it" when they have seen that arrests are occurring. "You're now able to put the manpower where you see the greatest demand."

• Deputy Mayor and Chief of Staff Mindy McGee reported the purchase of a new snow plow truck to replace a 1995 model in which the frame is starting to rust, causing concern over the amount of weight it will be able to handle and if it will hold up for future snowstorms. She said the plan is to sell the old truck and purchase the new truck from Palmer Trucks of Louisville, a 2019 truck with a two-year 250,000-mile warranty, at a cost of $129,229. McGee said the city is also working toward a leasing arrangement on the truck.

"As part of acquisition of former Highway 56, we have inherited a lot of lane miles to maintain," Courtney said. "... And this winter we inherited quite a bit of snow. We can't afford to be without effective equipment like this."

• Approved a request from Ann Lostutter and Robert Dean on behalf of WOW! What a Find LLC, for permission to close a portion of the alley between 215 and 217 East Main Street for a sale. Dean said 217 East Main Street, where WOW! What a Find is located, has been sold and the business has merchandise on the third floor that they need to move. "We are currently using all three floors," he said, noting the new owners want to use the third floor for an event space. Dean said he is hopeful the sale will help decrease what they will need to relocate. The alley closure will be Friday, May 28, through Monday, May 31, from noon to 8 p.m. daily

• Sheila Coffin, executive director of the Jefferson County United Way, submitted a request for street closings in conjunction with the organization's Golf Cart/UTV Parade fundraiser. The board approved closing Vaughn Drive between Ferry Street and Broadway Street for the event from 6-9 p.m. on Friday, July 23.

However, the request was amended to decline allowing a parade onto Main Street in conjunction with the event. "We're setting ourselves for a precedent with future requests," said Carlow, noting that golf carts are not allowed on Main Street. Courtney suggested that discussions could be held about other possible locations for that portion of the parade.

• Approved a request by Calhoun Construction for permission to close a portion of Main Street in front of the Ohio Theatre on Monday, June 7, through Wednesday June 9, from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily while construction repairs are being made on that building. Cole Anderson, project manager, said there will be a crane in front of the building during the work and he anticipated they will likely be done each day no later than 7 p.m.

• Approved a request from the Madison Area Running Club for a closing of streets association with the 2021 Firecracker 10K Run/Walk from 7 a.m. to noon on Saturday, July 3. Courtney applauded the continuation of the event — previously contested as the Madison Courier Firecracker 10K Run/Walk since 1979 — due to "the history of the race and keeping it as a Madison Regatta tradition."

SCHOOLS

Some money might also be budgeted as a staff stipend for additional duties related to COVID management next school year.

That's something the school board approved Wednesday for money received from the Elementary and Secondary School Emergency Relief Fund of the 2020 CARES Act — the school corporation's second round of COVID-related federal funding.

The one-time stipend was approved as a memorandum between the Madison Teachers Association and Madison Consolidated Schools for 2020-2021 in regard to additional work completed during the COVID crisis. Pay was set at $1,000 for bargaining unit members, administrators and professional certified while members who work part-time were pro-rated at $900 for 12-month full-time, professional non-certified, $700 for nine-month full-time, $500 for nine-month part-time, and employees hired after Jan. 1 will be reduced by 50%.

In other business:

• Recognized MCHS special education teacher DeAnn Klinedinst as Madison Consolidated Schools teacher of the year and MCHS head custodian Bobbi Jo Robinson as the school corporation's non-certified employee of the year. Recognition also was given to the Rykers' Ridge Elementary School math bowl team that was sixth in the state in its class and the Rykers' Ridge science bowl team that was seventh in the state in its class. Additionally, special recognition was given to Jacob Smith, who has served this year as the student representative on the Madison school board.

• Hired new personnel including head wrestling coach Tyson Skinner on faculty as a business teacher and former Visit Madison Inc. event coordinator Katie Burress as Kindergarten teacher at Lydia Middleton Elementary. Other new hires included Whitney Mathews, Cub Enterprises coordinator; Jackie Sprong, cheer coach at Madison Junior High School; Alex R. Andrew Bell, social studies teacher at Madison Junior High School, and Lee Strassel, math teacher at MCHS. Additionally, Adam Dennis was retroactively approved for assistant varsity girls basketball coach for the most recent season. And the retirement of Sharon Sullivan at Lydia Middleton will be effective May 28.

• Approved purchase of digital curriculum from Apex Learning for $31,716. This software will take the place of Plato courseware and will be used for credit recovery and in the high virtual lab.

• Granted Studebaker permission to hire summer school staff since summer classes will begin prior to the next school board meeting. Board members will vote on those hires retroactively.

• Announced bids for cafeteria line items. Food service coordinator Judy Brooks said fresh produce will be purchased from Dattilo Fruit, which bid at market price. She said Dattilo Fruit is a local company and will deliver orders, no matter how small, promptly to the cafeterias. Dairy and bread bids for Prairie Farms and Klosterman were received through Wilson Center.

• Announced an increase in meal prices. Brooks said students will receive one free breakfast and one free lunch each school day based on an extension of the state's meals program, but there is cost for purchasing a second meal and all are increasing by 10 cents.

• Approved textbook rental fees for the 2021-2022 school year which are then paid by Super ATV as a donation to the corporation and its students for the 2021-2022 school year.

• Approved an agreement with King's Daughters' Health to provide athletic training and consultation throughout the 2021-2022 school year at a cost of $9,600. The school district will be responsible for supplying facilities and equipment for the training staff including tape, pre-wrap and first aid supplies. The trainer has permission to use KDH supplies at their discretion when needed. Additionally, $2,000 will be contributed from the KDH Foundation to offset the cost of supplies to MCHS.

• Approved a $42,000 contract with Mad City CrossFit to provide fitness training with the program being increased from six school periods per day to seven periods per day.

• Approved an agreement with AVID (Advancement Via Individual Determination) for $10,679 for the 2021-2022 school year that assists students with study and organization skills.

• Approved $59,077.45 purchase from CDWG to purchase new firewall equipment, switches, cabling and installation.

Parents with no boundaries for kids

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I have great neighbors who have two daughters, ages 15 and 16. The 16-year-old has a 20-year-old boyfriend, and the 15-year-old has a live-in boyfriend who is also 15. The fact that he lives there is OK with his parents and hers.

I have walked by the room of the older girl more than once and seen her lying in bed with her boyfriend, under the covers, with the door half open. When this happens, I walk by and say hello, but I am uncomfortable as I do so. Her mother knows what they are doing.

The younger girl sleeps with her boyfriend, and the mother is aware of that and says, "It is what it is." The girl and her boyfriend are both failing in school, and their mothers are aware of this but have not taken any steps to put them on the right path. During the day, the two are left alone while the parents work. Meanwhile, the 16-year-old is doing terrific in school. The daughters both work — in fast food and retail.

I have no children, but I would think this is wrong and is going to ruin their lives down the road. Their father goes along because, if he objects, the mother always takes the kids' side.

Having boundaries is essential for teenagers to develop maturity. These parents and relatives are acting like kids themselves.

Both parents do not want drama, and giving in to the kids makes for no drama. I am just waiting to hear which one of them is going to get pregnant; the mother probably would be fine with that, but I do not think the father would be.

My wife and I are considered family and included at their family gatherings. Their relatives know what is going and defend it. They say that the girls are kids and nothing will happen. I reply, "If you think so," and they answer that I am old-fashioned. Am I? — Am I Old-Fashioned?

Dear Am I Old-Fashioned?: Having boundaries is essential for teenagers to develop maturity. These parents and relatives are acting like kids themselves. By any reasonable understanding, you are not old-fashioned. Your views reflect good parenting and common sense.

Trying to beat addiction

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: This is in response to the letter from "Outside the Bottle Looking In," whose wife is an alcoholic. I will start by saying I am so tremendously sorry for the heartbreak you are experiencing, and I admire the unselfish love you have for your wife and your never-ending desire to see her healthy. You mentioned that you hoped and prayed someone else will see themselves in your letter, and I felt compelled to inform you that I not only saw myself in your letter but also felt the pain that you, and my significant other, must experience on a daily basis at the hands of someone's self-serving addiction. I know I will have to take multiple breaks to "cry it out" throughout this letter, but getting the pain out of my system is part of the process.

As is true for most alcoholics, I grew up with an alcoholic father, who, at 74, is now drinking himself to death on a daily basis. As much as I would like to help him, I can barely keep my own boat afloat most days, so jumping into his boat right now would simply drown us both. I have quit drinking in the past, due to health issues as severe as pancreatitis, but for the past five years, I have managed to drink just under what it takes to noticeably hurt myself. Needless to say, the damage I am knowingly doing to my body is nothing short of irrational and unnecessary.

Being a high-functioning alcoholic, I hold a full-time day job running a Christian school, where I get all the love I need from the kids, without judgment. They, however, deserve an adult in their lives who does not miss Mondays because Sunday was a bit too rough. My son is set to graduate from high school this year, and he deserves a mom who can masterfully plan his graduation party, attend commencement and not have to drink during the celebration because it might be a little too stressful. And my significant other needs to know that while he's busy caring for the family and tending to those things outside of the house that pay the bills, he need not worry that someone is home drinking the moment he leaves the house and taking advantage of his generosity and trust.

In every situation, good and bad, people need to hear a message from someone else. Parents convey things to their children redundantly, but until the children hear it from the teacher, it doesn't stick. Today, you are my "someone else." Although I've only been sober for a month or so, since your letter was published in our local paper, it has been the greatest month of my life. Everyone finally got the REAL me back. That is the same amazing ME I've always been but spent years drowning in alcohol, so thank you for breathing life and hope back into my life. I hope God delivers the support your wife needs, just as you delivered the message I needed to help myself. God bless those who love and care for alcoholics, because until we choose to care for ourselves, we hurt so many. You are all priceless. — Finally Crawled Out of the Bottle

Dear Finally Crawled Out of the Bottle: Thank you for sharing you letter and your beautiful story of courage and success. Alcoholics may be self-serving in their addiction, but the addiction itself is a disease. The choice for the sober alcoholic is whether to take that first drink. If he or she succumbs, all future drinks are manifestations of the disease. That's why they say that for an alcoholic, "One drink is too many, a thousand not enough." Millions of others share this disease, so you don't have to go on this journey alone. I hope you are going to Alcoholics Anonymous meetings for reinforcement, support and advice.

Rebels avenge loss, nip Shawe for SITC crown

Southwestern's Elle Ford returns a shot during her No. 1 singles match in the Southern Indiana Tennis Conference Tournament on Saturday.

David Campbell

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Southwestern turned the tables on Shawe, posting a 3-2 win on Saturday to claim the championship of the Southern Indiana Tennis Conference Tournament at Shawe.

The Rebels (15-3) had lost a close 3-2 match to Shawe last month with the deciding point coming at No. 1 singles where the Hilltoppers' Abigail Hill outlasted the Rebels' Elle Ford in three sets.

Ford exacted some revenge in the second matchup, picking up the win thanks to a super 10-point tiebreaker, 4-6, 6-3, 10-6.

"Both Elle and Abigail played a great match and it was hard to see either lose but Elle played a strategic match mixing up down the line and across shots making her move and mixing in some fine net play to get the three set win and avenge another loss from earlier," Southwestern coach Kenny Garrett said.

"It was maybe the best I have seen Elle play just from a confidence standpoint and it could not have come at a better time."

Shawe (11-4) won the other two singles matches with Phoebe Grote beating Julia Worcester 7-5, 6-4 at No. 2 and Lauren Grote defeating Audrey Bare 6-3, 6-0 at No. 3.

Bear returns to take over Shawe soccer

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Just a year removed from graduating from Hanover College, Patrick Bear wasn't totally sure he was ready to jump into the coaching game right away. But when a position opened up at his alma mater, he knew that was too good to pass up.

Bear was officially introduced as the new head soccer coach at Shawe Memorial High School on Friday, meeting his team for the first time. As a Shawe graduate who scored the winning goal the last time the Hilltoppers won a sectional title in 2015, Bear is excited to get on the field and help rebuild the program that he loves.

"I had a lot of great memories here and I wanted to bring that feeling back to these kids," Bear said. "I had such great coaches that were willing to do anything for me and I want to do the same. We had a lot of success my senior year winning a sectional title and I want to bring a title back."

Bear replaces Cameron Willoughby, who isn't stepping down as much as stepping aside. A longtime assistant with the program, Willoughby took

No. 9 Rebels beat South Ripley, tied for ORVC lead

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Southwestern moved back into a tie atop the Ohio River Valley Conference baseball standings with a 10-3 win over then-front-runner South Ripley on Saturday in Versailles.

The Rebels, ranked ninth in Class 2A, had defeated South Ripley in Hanover three weeks ago, but losses to Milan and Jac-Cen-Del dropped Southwestern a game back of the Raiders.

But Southwestern used a three-run fourth inning to take control of the game then pushed five across in the sixth to put the game away.

Southwestern picked up 13 hits in the game, but other than a Foster Mefford triple, the other dozen were singles as the Rebels nickel and dimed their way to the win.

Mefford was 2-for-4 with an RBI and a run scored, Jackson Stockdale had two hits and drove in three runs, Brady McLain had two hits and an RBI, Jamison Lewis had a hit and two RBIs and Landon DeAtley had a hit and an RBI.

NBA regular season ends

BY TIM REYNOLDS
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

The compressed, coronavirus-threatened, NBA regular season like none other is over. All 1,080 games that were scheduled were played, and now the play-in round awaits. That begins Tuesday, runs through Friday, and the playoffs start Saturday.

TRIPLE DOUBLES

The players who had the second-, third- and fourth-most triple-doubles in the league this season — Nikola Jokic, James Harden and Luka Doncic, respectively — combined for 39 of the stat-sheet-stuffing efforts.

They combined for one more than Russell Westbrook.

Westbrook, the league's all-time triple-double king, had 38 this season. That's the second-most by anyone in any season; Westbrook had 42 in 2016-17. He also has the third-highest (34 in 2018-19) and fourth-highest (25 in 2017-18) triple-double season totals in NBA history.

MOST 3S PER GAME

Teams averaged 12.7 3-pointers per game this season, a new NBA record for the ninth consecutive year in that department.

Utah finished with a league-record 16.7 made 3's per game. The Jazz made a total of 1,205 3's season, third-most for any season in NBA history.

This was a 72-game regular season; if this had been the customary 82-game season, at that pace the Jazz would have made 1,372 3s this season.

The match hinged on No. 2 doubles where Hailey Jenkins and Taylor Harsin were locked in a battle with East's Shruthika Kimar and Katey Riekers before falling 6-7 (2-7), 7-6 (7-3), 6-4.

Trinity Stoner lost 6-3, 6-0 to Catherine Millwood at No. 2 singles and Grace Pittman fell 6-0, 6-0 at Katie Hong at No. 3 singles.

Madison, now 4-13 on the season, closed out the regular season on Monday with a home match against Scottsburg. The IHSAA Sectional Tournament begins on Wednesday at Greensburg with the draw being held on Monday evening.

BEAR

the top job two years ago after Seth Hall resigned just before the start of the season. But Willoughby's day job does not afford him the opportunity to be around the program on a full-time basis so a new head coach was needed.

Bear, who taught chemistry this past year at Switzerland County High School and will teach the same subject at Shawe, fit that bill perfectly. And with Willoughby staying on staff once again as an assistant and Bear's high school teammate, Cameron Rampy, also joining the staff, Bear likes the group he'll have in place to lead the Hilltoppers.

"(Rampy) and I have been friends for a long time and having Coach Cam back means we have a really good support system," Bear said. "We're going to be able to do what is best for these kids."

"Patrick is a young, intelligent, up and coming coach with a lot of passion and enthusiasm for sports and teaching. We feel that he will be an excellent role model and motivator for our students making him a great fit to lead our young soccer program which only loses one senior going into this upcoming fall season," Shawe Athletic Director Jamison Bower said. "Although he may not have a lot of experience specific to soccer, we believe he has all the qualities and knowledge needed to become a great coach given the opportunity. As a former Hilltopper himself, Patrick already has a good understanding of what Shawe athletics are about and our school's values. We look forward to watching his growth as he and his staff work to revitalize our soccer program and return to relevance within ORVC standings and compete for Sectional Championships.

Shawe went just 2-13-4 last season but the record was deceiving. The Hilltoppers started easily the youngest team in the area and had five games decided by single goals.

Bear didn't get a chance to see the Hilltoppers play much last year but talking to Willoughby, he knows what kind of team he has and is confident that they will turn the corner this year.

"It's a great sign to see close games and I think it comes down to age for some kids. We were a young team," Bear said. "We have a lot of talented players and now we want to see them take the next step and make the move to where these close games are you up one or two goals, not the other way around. That comes with experience."

Bear met his team briefly on Friday but due to the IHSAA dead period at the end of the month, the team will not begin offseason workouts until June 1.
